It's great to work for a company that cares about its local communities and encourages everyone to volunteer and give back. Which is why, on this International Day of Charity, we're sharing some of the different ways colleagues across Aggreko use their two days of volunteering time to give back to their local communities.

As Aggreko engineers, your work helps businesses grow and communities thrive. We bring power to off-grid communities in the Amazon. And closer to home, we make major infrastructure projects possible, from gold mines in Western Australia to freeway construction in Melbourne.
